ORDER

19 Pending before the Court are: (1) a Motion to Remand (Doc. 8), filed by Plaintiffs 20 Robert V. Tuzon and Cindy Baker; (2) a “Motion for Court to Order Defendants” (Doc. 9), 21 filed by Plaintiffs; and (3) a Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 11), filed by Defendants. For the 22 following reasons, the Court grants Plaintiffs’ Motion to Remand and denies as moot
23 Plaintiff’s “Motion for Court to Order Defendants” and Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss.

24 BACKGROUND

25 Plaintiffs’ complaint alleges the following. (Doc. 1, Ex. A). For the last ten years, 26 Ms. Baker has been employed as a professional stylist—and at times as Assistant Manager—at 27 Style America Salon (“Style America”), which is a part of the Regis Corporation. While 28 working as the Assistant Manager, Ms. Baker enforced Regis’ policies regarding cell phone

1 use and dress code, and as a result, her co-workers—Defendants Campuzano, Maeser, 2 Ramirez, and Ortero—retaliated against her. Defendants reduced Ms. Baker’s hours while she 3 was pregnant, denied her request to attend church, and removed her from her position as 4 Assistant Manager. Plaintiffs further allege that between May 2009 and January 2011, Ms.
5 Baker’s co-workers interfered with Plaintiffs’ purchase of a home. Defendant Finkelstein
6 (Regis Corporation’s President) failed to respond to complaints filed by Ms. Baker regarding 7 her co-workers’ conduct. Plaintiffs contend that they lost approximately $10,200 and the 8 ability to purchase a home as a result of Defendants’ conduct.

9 Plaintiffs filed suit in Maricopa County Superior Court, alleging claims such as 10 employment discrimination, fraud, defamation, and tortious interference. Defendants 11 removed the case to this Court. (Doc. 1).

12 DISCUSSION

13 I. Motion to Remand

14 A. Legal Standard

15 “[A]ny civil action brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United 16 States have original jurisdiction, may be removed by the defendant . . . to the district court
17 of the United States for the district and division embracing the place where such action is 18 pending.” 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a). In other words, “[o]nly state-court actions that originally 19 could have been filed in federal court may be removed to federal court by the defendant.”
20 Caterpillar, Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987). “If at any time before final judgment 21 it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the case shall be remanded.”
22 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c). There is a “strong presumption” against removal, and “[f]ederal 23 jurisdiction must be rejected if there is any doubt as to the right of removal in the first 24 instance.” Gaus v. Miles, Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing Libhart v. Santa 25 Monica Dairy Co., 592 F.2d 1062, 1064 (9th Cir. 1979)). Moreover, “[t]he party asserting 26 jurisdiction has the burden of proving all jurisdictional facts.” Indus. Tectonics, Inc. v. Aero 27 Alloy, 912 F.2d 1090, 1092 (9th Cir. 1990).

28 Because the parties do not argue that diversity jurisdiction exists, only the question

1 of federal question jurisdiction remains. Under 28 U.S.C. § 1331, “[t]he district courts shall 2 have original jurisdiction of all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties
3 of the United States.” A case “‘arises under’ federal law . . . if ‘a well-pleaded complaint 4 establishes either that federal law creates the cause of action or that the plaintiff’s right to 5 relief necessarily depends on resolution of a substantial question of federal law.’” Proctor
6 v. Vishay Intertech. Inc., 584 F.3d 1208, 1219 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting Empire Healthchoice
7 Assurance, Inc. v. McVeigh, 547 U.S. 677, 689–90 (2006)). Furthermore, as “master[s] of 8 the complaint,” Plaintiffs “may defeat removal by choosing not to plead independent federal 9 claims.” ARCO Env’tl. Remediation, LLC v. Dep’t of Health and Human Servs., 213 F.3d
10 1108, 1114 (9th Cir. 2000) (citing Caterpillar, 482 U.S. at 392).

11 B. Analysis

12 In their Motion to Remand, Plaintiffs repeatedly assert that their “complaint states
13 Arizona Constitution violation issues, as well as Arizona Torts” and that the Arizona state 14 court system is the proper channel through which to adjudicate their state law claims. (Doc.
15 8 at 14). In their Response, Defendants argue that Plaintiffs’ “claims for employment 16 discrimination, possibly based on religion, inability to speak Spanish, and pregnancy” may 17 be based on Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, thereby satisfying federal question
18 jurisdiction and supplemental jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367. (Doc. 12).
19 However, the mere fact that Plaintiffs’ employment discrimination claims may be based on 20 Title VII does not create federal question jurisdiction where Plaintiffs, as “master[s] of the 21 complaint”, repeatedly contend that their claims are based on state law and seek to remand 22 on that basis. Plaintiffs’ employment discrimination claims may also be supported by the 23 Arizona Civil Rights Act. See A.R.S. § 41-1463. “When a claim can be supported by 24 alternative and independent theories—one of which is a state law theory and one of which is 25 a federal law theory—federal question jurisdiction does not attach because federal law is not 26 a necessary element of the claim.” Rains v. Criterion Sys., Inc., 80 F.3d 339, 346 (9th Cir.
27 1996). Accordingly, Plaintiffs’ complaint does not establish either that federal law creates 28 a cause of action or that Plaintiffs’ right to relief depends on the resolution of a federal

1 question.

2 Moreover, even if Plaintiffs intended to bring their employment discrimination claim
3 pursuant to Title VII, they could not do so because Title VII prohibits employers from 4 discriminating against employees based on protected characteristics, and Plaintiffs have 5 failed to serve process on any employer. Under Title VII, an “employer” is defined as “a 6 person engaged in an industry affecting commerce who has fifteen or more employees for 7 each working day in each of twenty or more calendar weeks in the current or preceding 8 calendar year, and any agent of such a person.” 42 U.S.C. §2000(e)(b). Individual
9 defendants may not be liable for employment discrimination claims. See Miller v. Maxwell’s
10 Int’l Inc., 991 F.2d 583, 587 (9th Cir. 1993) (“[I]t is inconceivable that Congress intended 11 to allow civil liability to run against individual employees.”). Thus, Defendants Campuzano, 12 Ramirez, Ortero, Maeser, Finkelstein and their spouses cannot be employers pursuant to the 13 statute, and Defendant Regis Corporation is dismissed from this action without prejudice due
14 to Plaintiffs’ failure to serve.¹

15 Plaintiffs’ motion to remand is granted because the case does not arise under federal 16 law. The Title VII claim which Defendants base their opposition to remand upon cannot exist
17 where no employer has been served and the deadline for service has expired. Accordingly, 18 the Court lacks subject matter jurisdiction in this case.

19 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED:

20 1. Plaintiffs’ Motion to Remand (Doc. 8) is GRANTED. The Clerk of the Court

22 ¹ On June 30, 2011, the Court entered an Order to Show Cause why Defendant Regis
23 Corporation should not be dismissed as a result of Plaintiffs’ failure to serve the Summons 24 and Complaint. (Doc. 36). Plaintiffs responded by providing the certified mail receipt of an 25 article addressed to “Paul Finkelspein, [sic] CEO for Regis Corporation.” (Doc. 37). In 26 response, Regis Corporation entered a limited appearance for the purpose of supplying the 27 Court with the contents of the mailing to Paul Finkelstein and reasserting, as Defendants have 28 several times before, that Regis Corporation has not been served in this matter. (Doc. 38, 39). The documents clarify that Plaintiffs served Paul Finkelstein as an individual Defendant, but service was not effected separately on the Corporation itself. Because the deadline for service of process is long overdue, Regis Corporation is terminated from this action.

1 is directed to remand this case to the Maricopa County Superior Court. Prior to remanding,
2 the Clerk of the Court is directed to TERMINATE Defendant Regis Corporation from the 3 action.

4 2. Plaintiffs' "Motion for Court to Order Defendants" (Doc. 9) is DENIED as 5 moot.

6 3. Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (Doc. 11) is DENIED as moot.
